GEOCELL & GEOGRID

GEOCELL

Geocell is a 3 dimensional expandable cellular confinement system of various depths made from HDPE. It is used to confine various infills and provide stability on slopes and channels. Offers unique, eco friendly solutions for various civil engineering challenges. Engineered for diversity, can be utilised in various sectors such as roads, railways, ports and others. This Geocell is perfect for construction and saving money. They can be filled with locally sourced material, a cost saving, especially in remote locations where aggregates require importation. It can be used for Erosion control; this enables vegetation to re-generate in difficult areas, preventing wash out zones. It is also perfect for un-paved roads. This means an access road can be built in most locations during construction zones, and much more economical than building a permeant road structure. This Geocell can also be used to reinforce structures, build up the foundation, and as a retaining wall.

PAVEMENT REINFORCEMENT GEOGRID

Pavement Reinforcement Geogrid is a stretched, monolithic polypropylene (PP) flat bar welded geogrid. The unique manufacturing process allows the manufacture of wide width product enabling quick and economical installation in the field. The product has exceptionally low strain development at load generation within a pavement. The manufacturing process allows for equal strength in two directions (both along and across the roll directions) with a unique radial influence of reinforcement on the pavement materials between these primary strength directions.

FLOATING SILT CURTAINS

Floating silt curtains are used to contain mobilised soil particles from propagating into waterways from adjacent construction sites. During construction activities, any turbidity created will be contained within the silt curtain boundaries limiting the extent of the silt movement. Floating silt curtains are manufactured from self-buoyant, durable polypropylene non-woven geotextile. A 100mm float is pre-installed into the top high visibility pocket, and a ballast chain for weighting purposes maintaining tightness is pre-installed in the bottom pocket. Individual sections are easily and firmly joined end to end through eyelets and industrial velcro is used to strengthen and tightly seal the joints.

Application

- Bank works in creeks, streams
- Canal works
- Shore based works only in exposed waters

A standard section is 15m long and a 2m drop. Sections shall be joined end to end to create the entire curtain length required.

GABION

GABION MATTRESSES

Gabion mattresses are thin, flexible cages which are made of hexagonal, double twisted woven wire mesh. Natural rock is used to fill the cages and this allows them to blend into the environment. This stops erosion, preserves the environment and encourages natural vegetation growth which in turn provides a more visually appealing landscape.

Gabions have been used successfully around the world for over 100 years for river and creek beds, channel linings, soil retention and stabilising embankments and slopes. There are many advantages to using Gabion mattresses which helps make them the preferred choice in many large civil projects as well as in smaller domestic situations.
